This is the power of Internet of Things. The demand for MCard has been growing and there are more design-in to make devices IoT ready in the past few months mainly driven by the infection fear of COVID-19 and also social distancing and working from home. Front line healthcare workers are trying to minimize the contact with patients and factories are looking at how production managers and operators can continue to manage the production lines remotely with minimum operators onsite and continue to have the factories running at full capacity.

The ASIC design services take longer time to complete due because of the inefficiency of working from home.
